

Judgement

93 1 6

Chapter 1 by Story Wars

I smile as the woman's scream gets softer as she plummets, down, down, down, into the abyss. I would feel sorry for her, but there is no helping her. If she has been judged, she has been judged.

Well, let me introduce myself. I am Maia, the judge. Not like the judge the mortals had, I am the immortal judge of souls. I control who's soul is cast into the abyss, and who's is sent for reincarnation.

"Maia, the next one has arrived." Instantly, memories rush into my mind. These aren't my memories, they are the memories of the next, well you could say victim. He goes by the name of, what was it, oh yes, Colin.

Chapter 2 by Benjo - Inactive

It seems in his lifetime he was an accountant. Argh. I hate accountants. They always bore me. I watched his whole life story, he has committed one crime. Stealing a pen. Honestly, the guilt I feel from this vision, I wonder how humans live.

"Colin, I announce you reincarnated"

The dimming soul laying on the seat in front of me, immediately it brightened. I wonder how important my job actually is to the elders.

"Maia, lunch break"

I sigh as I hop off my seat, and walk into the lunch area. There is quite a few of us that live and work here. Most of us are immortal. That aren't those are the ones who need to pay off their debt.

See more of Story Wars

Login

or

Create new account

A sit down at my seat on the table of Immortals and I slowly munch on my lettuce. Another thing I hate about this place, vegetarians can't get good food.

"Maia, more judging required now"

Why? Why was I cursed with this job? I walked out of the lunch room, into the judging room, and I sat on my seat. More memories rushed into my mind. I was amazed at what I saw.

This man, Joe, his life has been eventful.

Write a draft for chapter 3 of 8 (1 draft)

i You need to login before writing - click here

Continue the story

☐ Flag as mature ☐ receive feedback

Submit draft

Write a comment...

About | Rooms | Feedback | f @ t

See more of Story Wars

Login

or

Create new account